DOES THAT SIDELONG GLANCE MEAN SOMETHING?

STROLLING IN PARIS with her husband, Prince Rainier III of Monaco, bride Princess Grace (Kelly) gives a baby carriage a sidelong glance in the Bois de Boulogne. When the royal couple arrived in Paris earlier in the day, the princess parried reporters' questions about a possible visit from the duke, she said quietly, "I'm afraid we didn't start the rumors." Ike Follows FDR Line In Selections

By LYLE C. WILSON

United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—President Eisenhower might have learned his lessons from the Old Master himself, the way he dealt with FDR's political deck.

FDR's like in the White House may never be seen again. Mr. Eisenhower learns fast, however, as witness his pick of two caustic critics of administration foreign policy to represent the United States in the U.N. General Assembly.

Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.) calls Eisenhower policies in the Far East too soft on Red China. He's more often off than on the foreign policy reservation. Knowland doesn't like the President's air inspection plan for disarmament much more than do the Russians.

Neither Bill Back Down
Mr. Eisenhower chose Knowland, however, and Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) as U.S. representatives. Humphrey has the persistence of a mosquito and the sting of an over-size wasp when he goes after the administration, which is mighty near all the time and on all subjects. They were two of five representatives named by the President.

As U.S. representatives neither senator will need reverse his individual position. It is inevitable, however, that both will be drawn more closely to administration foreign policy because each will have become instrumental in it to some degree. Such strategy is right out of DR's political handbook, as was a third nomination of Paul G. Hoffman to be a U.S. representative.

Challenge McCarthy
Mr. Eisenhower, like Mr. Roosevelt, oils the waters where he can but does not always run from a fight. Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) has promised to oppose Hoffman's confirmation by the Senate. The administration chose to challenge McCarthy. That should make considerable political hay with the big-speeding foreign policy element among the voters and the anti-McCarthy folk. That strategy probably will pay off, too.

The choices of Knowland-Humphrey were in the pattern of Mr. Eisenhower's alert draft of Sen. Walter F. George for the administration team last May. The Senate dean was forced to announce his retirement under threat of a bad licking in Georgia's senatorial primary. Young former Gov. Herman Talmadge had decided to make the Senate race.

George will be Mr. Eisenhower's eyes and ears in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and a powerful defender of administration foreign policy against all attacks, including Democratic. That was smart politics.

Three Hurt In Wreck

Several people were injured in a collision Saturday night at 11:20 o'clock, according to Cohen Stubblefield, deputy sheriff. Stubblefield said that an automobile driven by John V. Shannon struck a bridge abutment on U.S. 641, Hazel highway, then careened into an automobile driven by Quava Beaman.

The Shannon car was badly damaged and the Beaman car was also, landing in a ditch to the side of the road. Mr. and Mrs. Shannon and Miss Beaman were taken to the Murray Hospital for treatment. Mr. Shannon suffered three broken ribs and bruises and Mrs. Shannon suffered some face cuts and bruises. Miss Beaman suffered bruises and contusions.

The Beaman car was traveling North on US 641 when the accident occurred.

East German Reds Bow To Workers

BERLIN, July 16 (AP)—Communist East Germany bowed today to the demands of rebellious workers and called off an industrial "specter" up in the Soviet Zone. Western observers said the action indicated Communist concern over the possibility of a Poznan-type "bread and freedom" revolt.

As U.S. representatives neither senator will need reverse his individual position. It is inevitable, however, that both will be drawn more closely to administration foreign policy because each will have become instrumental in it to some degree. Such strategy is right out of DR's political handbook, as was a third nomination of Paul G. Hoffman to be a U.S. representative.

Big Plane Has Bomb Scare

ELKO, Nev., July 16 (AP)—A United Air Lines DC-6 "mainliner" made a three-hour stopover Sunday night because of a bomb scare which turned out to be a hoax. The plane was ordered to stop here after the airlines' San Francisco office received an anonymous phone call warning that there was a dynamite bomb in the plane.

The plane, which was flying nonstop from San Francisco to Chicago, put down at the closest base, which was Elko. About 65 passengers, including 22 members of the San Francisco ballet en route to Corning, N.Y., for a performance.

Before landing, Pilot J. W. Nelson jettisoned the gasoline, because of the short runway. The passengers were told why the plane landed. They remained calm and left the plane quietly.

Police and postal authorities began removing the baggage. The airliner was removed to a distant part of the field for the search. No explosives were found. The plane resumed its flight at 2:18 a.m. EDT.

R. Churchill Gets Degree On Friday

Ralph D. Churchill, professor of religious education at Southwest Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth, Texas, was granted the doctor of religious education degree by the institution at its summer commencement, July 13. June Foy Is Recognized In Magazine

Miss June Foy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. V. Foy, was featured this Sunday in the national magazine "This Week," which has a distribution over the nation. A photograph of Miss Foy and several other teen-age cooks, appeared in an article written by the magazine's Piddelford, food editor of the magazine.

The article concerned favorite recipes of teen-agers over the country which they had prepared themselves. Miss Piddelford wrote the article after traveling over various parts of the country "spying" on teenage cooks.

The article reads in part, "June Foy of Murray, Ky. reports that her high school crowd is 'real gone' on the potluck meal. Each guest brings something and the dishes are arranged on one table—stuff like baked beans, hot dogs, macaroni casserole and June's own favorite, the Saturday Night Spread for buns. June has been cooking since she was five when she bought her first cook book at the dime store. Vacation time she earns extra money selling cookies and her prize-winning cherry pie."

Frederick Whitnell To Arrive In States

FORT LEWIS, Wash. — PFC Frederick A. Whitnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Whitnell, 508 S. 11th st., Murray, is scheduled to arrive at Fort Lewis, Wash., this month from Alaska as part of Operation Gyroscope, the Army's unit rotation plan.

Whitnell is a member of the 7th Infantry Division, which is replacing the 2nd Infantry Division at Fort Lewis. A gunner in Company I of the division's 4th Regiment, Whitnell entered the Army in October 1954 and completed basic training at Fort Ord, Calif.

He was graduated from Murray High School in 1952.

Drains Searched For Kidnaped Baby

WESTBURY, N.Y., July 16 (AP)—Police were scheduled today to begin searching water drains near the house from which Peter Weinberger was kidnaped in an effort to find the missing baby's body. A 33-year-old Brooklyn man, arrested Sunday night for making a telephone call to Mrs. Weinberger, was to be arraigned today in Milwaukee.

The man, identified as Harold Snyder, was charged with making telephone calls which "distracted" and annoyed Mrs. Weinberger July 15.

Snyder was arrested after a telephone operator overheard his call and notified police. Detective Frank Steiner arrested Snyder in Westbury to where the call had been traced.

Police and FBI agents Sunday huddled over the files on the Stephen Damman kidnaping and the Weinberger case to learn if there was any similarity in the two crimes.

A special squad of some 30 detectives also laboriously compared signatures on nearly 300,000 Nassau County automobile license applications with the handwriting on the kidnap note.

ADVICE PAID OFF

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Will (The Jockey) Herzog, 72, was arrested Thursday on a complaint he was operating as a tipster at a spot where racing fans wait for buses. Hollywood Park race track. The vice squad officer who made the arrest obtained evidence by purchasing from Herzog information on three horses, for $250. But two of the nags came in first with $150 and $75 payoffs, and Herzog claimed he is not tipster but an investment counselor.

Tons Of Water From Chicago Fire Paralyze City Traffic

NEW YORK, July 16 (AP)—One of the worst subway jams in history hit New York City today when some 500,000 rush-hour commuters were forced to seek alternate routes to lower Manhattan. The normal routes were flooded and knocked out by tons of water used in fighting one of the city's worst fires in a quarter of a century.

The 5-hour blaze gutted the 94-year-old John Wansmaker department store on lower Broadway, once a palatial structure now in the process of being torn down to make way for an apartment building.

The cascading water knocked out sections of the Interboro Rapid Transit System, which links Grand Central Terminal on 42nd Street with the Wall Street financial district, and the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit system, which links Brooklyn and Manhattan.

City Police reported today that several calls kept them busy over the weekend. One drunk was picked up, one drunk driver, and one fire.

Calls were also answered involving "family troubles." Sycamore street is now zoned at 25 miles per hour, in an effort to cut speeding. Automobiles coming from the direction of Hazel have failed to slow down very much, as they entered the southern city limits.

Numerous complaints have been registered concerning speeding on this city street.

ANNOUNCEMENT

A special meeting of the American Legion Post 73, has been called for Tuesday night. All members of the post are urged to be present.

Northern Democrats, the measure is virtually certain to pass the House. But most observers believe it will be sidetracked in the Senate, where it would face a Southern filibuster.

Foreign aid: The Senate planned to take up this week a bill providing a $4 billion foreign aid appropriations, but a floor fight to trim it appeared likely. The House already has approved a $4 billion appropriation. A conference committee probably will have to work out a compromise figure.

Social Security: A bill lowering retirement ages for women and disabled workers is scheduled for Senate debate this week. The House passed a similar bill last year.

Housing: The Senate has passed a housing bill continuing present housing programs and providing for expanded public housing. In the House, the measure has bogged down in the Rules Committee in a fight over the public housing features.

There are a number of other bills slated for consideration in one or both houses. Among these is the administration measure to raise postal rates. It has cleared the House but may not get before the Senate before adjournment.

Senate-approved bills awaiting House action include legislation authorizing government construction of atomic power reactors, a flood insurance program and liberalized pensions for federal workers.

Committee Reaffirms Control

FRANKFORT, July 16 (AP)—The newly elected State Democratic Central Executive Committee, which met here this weekend reaffirmed that Gov. A. B. Chandler is in firm control of party machinery.

The committee elected Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Watersfield as secretary to succeed former Lt. Gov. Emerson Beauchamp and voted to move state Democratic Headquarters from Louisville to Frankfort.

The committee re-elected Robert T. Hazley, Louisville, treasurer, and William A. Young, chairman for the Nov. 6 elections. Young served as campaign chairman for Sen. Earle C. Clements in the May 28 primary.

Sen. Robert Humphreys, committee chairman, told members elected at the Democratic State Convention, that they should not serve unless they planned to actively support all nominees of the party.

Chandler ousted Clements from control of the committee through his victory in Democratic county conventions July 3, which was (Continued On Page Two)

KHRUSHCHEV, THE TOPER

Absence of Nikita Khrushchev from a joint meeting of the Supreme Soviet, at which an appeal for world peace and disarmament was released, plus evidence that the top Russian has become careless about heavy drinking recently, is causing world-wide speculation as to whether he is on the way out.

When Air Force Chief of Staff General Nathan F. Twining visited Moscow Khrushchev got drunk on vodka and made a speech in which he bitterly attacked the United States and its allies, but fortunately General Twining didn't understand what he was saying.

He did understand Premier Bulganin, however, when he told his boss to "shut up," and he was both shocked and amazed that he would speak in such tones to the head of the Russian government. The only way he can explain it is that the Russian leader has the habit of making a fool of himself in public, and that Bulganin knows from experience what it takes to control him under such circumstances.

Of course Russia is not the only country suffering from a let-down in public morals. It is said to be an aftermath of war, and we are too careless even in America where we wink at television programs piped into our living rooms in which strong drink is served with all the social graces so as to make it appear proper in better homes, as well as in taverns and houses of prostitution.

Also we frequently hear of men and women holding high office in our government, or occupying places of honor in our society, disgracing themselves in public places, and going scot free because of their influence in politics, and because they know the "right people."

This sort of public attitude always leads to carelessness on the part of those we choose to rule over us, or we prefer to say "serve us," whether it be in America or Russia, and we have nobody to blame but ourselves. If the Russians don't like their rulers they should change them. And they probably will.

It makes cold chills run up and down one's back, however, to realize in this age of nuclear fission that such characters hold the fate of mankind in their hands.

After 56 cars of green tomatoes had been shipped from Murray, the market bogged down last week and closed until the ripe tomato season is in.

James M. Harwell, 77, died Sunday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. L. T. Easley of Coldwater, following a five weeks illness. Funeral services were held at the Coldwater Methodist Church at two o'clock Monday with the Rev. H. P. Blankenship of Kirksey conducting the services. Burial was in the Mt. Carmel Cemetery near Kirksey.

Miss Suzanne Miller was hostess at a dinner party at her home Monday evening at which time the engagement of Miss Yvonne Miller to Edward H. Blaine of Seattle, Wash., was revealed.

Murray State's 50 Thoroughbreds and Head Coach Jim Moore will use the "T" formation, augmented by the single wing this fall, it was indicated here today.

campus as the first Baptist Student Secretary. He also holds the bachelor of sacred music and master of religious education degrees from the Southwestern Seminary, which is Southern Baptist institution and the largest of its kind in the world.

Having taught in the seminary's School of Religious Education since 1944, Dr. Churchill received promotion to a full professorship last year. During the time he has taught there he has also served as the seminary's director of publicity, secretary of the alumni association, director of the extension department, and editor of the school's catalogues, bulletins, student directory and monthly paper, the Southwestern News. He has also served a number of churches in the Fort Worth-Dallas area as minister of music and religious education, and has directed music for revival campaigns throughout the South. He is on the deacon board of the Travis Ave. Baptist Church, Fort Worth, which has over 6,000 members.

Dr. and Mrs. Churchill (the former, Ruth Stone of Kuttawa, Ky.) have two daughters, 18 and 11, and one son, 9. Mrs. Churchill is also a graduate of Murray State College and has taught in the Calloway County school system and in Murray High School.

NEW YORK — Fearless

Fraley's facts and figures:

Don Zimmer, the Brooklyn infielder recovering from his second serious beating in such a fierce competitor that he rages at Manager Walter Alton when he is kept on the bench.

Alton recently visited Zimmer in the hospital and, in an attempt to encourage him, said:

"Don't worry. You'll be back playing with us soon."

"I don't see why," Zimmer retorted bitterly. "I don't even play when I'm healthy."

Turned The Tables

Nat Fleischer, the boxing historian and editor of The Ring magazine, was turned down by the American Olympic Committee when he requested press credentials for the Olympic games. So he signed to do a series for Australia Consolidated Press and will make the trip — with all expenses paid.

With Nashua slated to be retired at the end of the year, Swaps and Needles both seem to have a chance to eventually become the money winning champions. Nashua can boost his $1,158,765 total today by taking the $79,000 winner's share of the Monmouth Handicap.

Swaps can close in a bit and take sixth place in the all-time standings in the $100,000 guaranteed Hollywood Gold Cup. And Needles is only $56,000 off Nashua's world record pace at a comparable early three-year old stage. But Nashua has his million plus and they still have it to win.

Batboy Wins Degree

Dr. Harold Seymour of Lakewood, Ohio, a former Brooklyn batboy, has earned a doctor of philosophy degree at Cornell with a thesis on "The Rise of Major League Baseball." Among other things he showed that Moses Walker, an Oberlin alumnus, was the first Negro player in organized baseball playing in the American Association for more than 8 years. Jimmy Thomson, once famed as the longest hitter in golf, used every muscle in his body with furious abandon as he walloped the little white pill and never had an ache.

DISC JOCKEY'S WIFE SLAIN

WALLACE DICKSON, a Pittsburgh disc jockey, was questioned by police in the shooting-bludgeoning death of his wife, Nancy, in the living room of their home in suburban Edgewood. He was given two lie detector tests. (International Soundphoto)

HOAXED, GOES TO COURT

ACCOMPANIED by her uncle, Milton Fisher (right), and detective Frank Steiner, Mrs. Beatrice Weinberger, mother of kidnaped infant Peter Weinberger, arrives at Ridgewood, N.Y., felony court for arraignment of Thomas Rowell and Robert Francis Giebler. Charged with attempting to extort $5,000 from Mrs. Weinberger on a promise to return her child, Rowell and Giebler face possible prison terms of 25 years. (International Soundphoto)

ANOTHER APPEAL TO KIDNAPER

MORRIS WEINBERGER weeps openly as his wife makes a new, frantic appeal to the kidnaper of their infant son, Peter, on the lawn of their home in Westbury, N. Y. Following this latest appeal, Mrs. Weinberger disappeared from her home for six hours in a futile attempt to contact the kidnaper. The month-old baby was abducted from a rear patio July 4. CHAPTER 8
 PRISCILLA and Rita stopped behind New Todd's car and sat looking at the ancient house. It was a huge house, many-galleted, weather-beaten, but not unattractive. The windows were long and shuttered, a shutter hanging here and there. There was a Captain's walk, and the house was surrounded by a tall iron fence on top of a foot-high brick wall. Huge oaks and magnolias crowded into the tangled garden. Heavy columns supported an upper gallery. Windows reached to the floor. A brick walk led from the entrance gates to the broad steps. Bricks were missing, grass growing in the spaces.

Priscilla said, "It is cold and it does look sort of haunted, doesn't it?"

"It certainly looks lonely and deserted," Rita said.

"What on earth will I do with the house if I can't sell it, Rita? It's monstrous!"

"You'll sell, somebody will buy it for some purpose—and of course the sooner the better. Her eyes moved over the grounds. "Must have really been a show place at one time, but I can understand why Mr. Todd said it would be difficult to find a purchaser."

Mr. Todd joined them. "It looks just as it did the first time I saw it, and to tell you it's looked the same for fifty years. 'Course the shades used to be up, and grass and weeds were cut."

"It's the loneliest-looking place I ever saw," said Priscilla. "Even a ghost would be lonesome there."

Mr. Todd led the way up the creaking steps and unlocked the heavy doors. It was dim and cold inside and smelled of mold and dust, mice and rotting wood. He raised a few shades, opened shutters, revealing a thick, brownish coating of dust over everything. Curtains hung, fragile and brittle with dust. There was a square piano with most of the ivories missing. All the furniture was heavy, richly carved, very beautiful. Priscilla was thinking that room could be found for it in a modern home. Chandeliers which had held candles in long-gone days were dusty and fly-specked; upholstery was faded and worn. There was a huge grandfather clock, old albums, pictures.

They opened drawers, discovering heavy dull silver, good china, yellowed linens.

Rita said, "Let's look around this time, Priscilla. Then decide later what you should do with it. There's no use trying to decide right now. Some of these pieces will bring a lot of money."

They spent almost an hour going from room to room, upstairs and down, and when they were down again, Mr. Todd said briskly, "I'll just look up. When you decide what you're going to do, we'll come back. You can be thinking about it."

"We won't take any more of your time Mr. Todd," Rita said agreeably. "Leave the key with us and we'll look around a little more. I saw a sign down the street advertising antiques. They might be interested in some of these things."

Mr. Todd's hesitation was so apparent that Rita was sure he didn't want them to have the key. He turned it over reluctantly, suggesting that they drop it by his office, to which Rita made no reply. She did ask if he could send someone to cut the grass and clean the grounds and give the place a better appearance before putting it on the market.

They were still there an hour later when Mr. Todd returned. His voice was worried. "I talked to several boys, but they all turned me down. Word has got around that the place is haunted and it's going to be hard to get any of them to work here."

"Then how can we get the place cleaned up?"

"I'll keep looking. Frankly, you'll not bother about it. Won't really make any difference when it comes to a sale."

Mr. Todd had been gone only a few minutes when a boy of about fourteen came to the door. He had met Mr. Todd. He said that he would be willing to work outside but wouldn't clean inside, "because it was haunted."

Priscilla laughed, which was a mistake. The boy said evenly, "That's nothin' to laugh about."

"That's right," Rita said in a friendly voice. "But we don't know much about such things. Won't you tell us why it's haunted?"

The boy shifted from one foot to the other, his eyes moving over the giant old house. "Don't know 'sactly why, it jes is. Lights move around in one of those windows upstairs. And people hear voices, whisperin' like."

Priscilla said, "I'll surely accept the first offer. The place is giving me the creeps."

"Power of suggestion," Rita said. "I wouldn't say sell it because it's the only sensible thing to do. Let's decide what you want to do with the furniture, or better still, why not turn the whole thing over to Mr. Todd to handle with some real estate firm?"

They were preparing to lock the door when Rita said, "Wait a minute. I'm not sure that I locked the back door."

She went back, found the door locked, and had turned to go when she saw a roll of bills on the floor—new, crisp, and shiny. Wonderingly she picked the roll up and examined it. Twenty-five twenty-dollar bills under a rubber band. Had Mr. Todd dropped it there? If so, and he had missed it, he certainly must be upset by now. She would have to telephone him.

"Look, Priscilla, did you drop this?"

Priscilla looked at the roll of bills and gasped. "Heavens, no! I never carry that much cash. Where did it come from?"

"I found it on the floor by the back door. I wonder why we didn't see it before."

Priscilla giggled. "Well, if the place is haunted with greenbacks, maybe I'd better not sell after all."

"Mr. Todd must have dropped it."

"He must have. How else would it have got there? That's new money—and no one's been inside for a long time, he said. How much is it?"

"Twenty-five twenty-dollar bills."

"Glory be!" Priscilla exclaimed. "Rita, what if Mr. Todd says it isn't his?"

"It has to be his; there's no other explanation. Let's go and telephone him."

After the breakfast the president, Mrs. H. C. Corn, presided over a business meeting. Guests were introduced and welcomed.

The most important item of business was the planning of Holiday House. Mrs. Corn introduced Mrs. Ed Huie, general chairman for the occasion. Mrs. Huie announced that the home of Mrs. E. J. Beale would be decorated by members of both clubs present and would be open to the public on the date of Tuesday, December 11, from two o'clock to nine o'clock in the evening. The theme used in decorations will be "Christmas in the Air."

All necessary committees were appointed and instructed to begin work at once on plans for Holiday House. Other matters of business were attended to. Mrs. Jack Kennedy, chairman of the Civic Committee, announced that her committee had planted geraniums in the planters at the Health Center. The club will meet July 25 with Mrs. Ed Huie and Mrs. J. I. Hosick as hostesses.
